

Alternative Navigation For Use In Any Morgan

The Beeline Moto

I have tried out the beeline Moto in my Mazda on the trip to Knutsford

First impression I can see it's not for everyone.

I think going back to basics is a good idea, at £149.00 it's possible a must-have for any 2/3/4 wheel adventure, especially when you don't want information overload, time isn't an issue, you just want to get to the end destination and freestyle on route without any navigation, just the sounds of being out on the open road, and no trailing wires etc, it's battery life is brilliant and more importantly it allows you to keep your in your pocket, so no unexpected musical interludes I experienced on the last run out when using my iPhone, it couldn't be easier to unclip it and shove away when parked up.

I'm going to test on a few more complex routes in the next week or so, I didn't realise until today you can download the App and try the navigation system via your smartphone for free, it's not ideal but because of the battery life on the phone, you need to plug the phone in, but gives you a feel without spending any money.

My thoughts I'm definitely interested/purchasing (probably not until after can go anywhere and everywhere re lockdown) I wouldn't use it in Europe when information overload is required, it's looking like the perfect edition to enhance your driving experience in these days of always being connected and being bombarded with information.

obviously it will never replace planning a route on a OS map, the beeline is neat, small and the standard motorcycle mounts will definitely In my opinion work in the Morgan
